Background and Welcome

About WFATE

Many nations are coping not only with teacher shortages, but also with the challenge of updating the knowledge and skills of their existing teaching force. Expectations for teachers are continually increasing. Teachers are asked to learn new content, pedagogies, and technology tools. National and regional teacher education associations around the world are working individually to address these issues, but would benefit from collaboration with other associations that are facing similar challenges. To address this need, a group of teacher education associations have come together to form a worldwide federation of associations of teacher education.

It is the mission of the World Federation of Associations of Teacher Education to build a global community of teacher educators and to promote trans-national collaboration, support, and research and development in teacher education.

Welcome

We welcome you to this second Biannual Conference on ‘Educating all the World’s Children: Challenges and Strategies for Teacher Development’, organised by the World Federation for Teacher Education (WFATE). Kenya was chosen as the venue because it is host to the on-going efforts of forming the African Chapter of the federation (African Association of Teacher Educators – AfriATE).

The conference theme is aligned with the Millennium Development Goal of Education for All, as well as Kenya’s Vision of promoting Education, Technology and Innovation. The conference will deliberate, among other topics, Continuing Professional Development, ICT integration and Teacher Education; with special emphasis on Quality, Science and Technology. The conference aims at creating wider participation and extended conversations on these topical issues that might influence policy. Besides the international participants from USA, Australia, Europe and South Africa, we expect several Kenyan delegates to attend. Among others the following have confirmed participation: University researchers, heads of Teacher Training Colleges and Schools, Teachers, MOE staff, Union officials, Educationists and other stakeholders. We look forward to a lively and fruitful conference.

Karibu!

Professor Elijah I. Omwenga

Chairman, Local Organising Committee & Board Member, WFATE
